1. Claims 1-24 are presented for examination. However, restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. § 121:

I. Claims 1-12, drawn to “a method at a processor core module of a system on a chip (SOC) a first MSR access command and providing, in response to executing the first MSR access command, a first access request an external bus port to access an external device”, Classified in Class 710, Subclass 107.

II. Claims 13-23, drawn to a “system comprising a processor core portion to decode an MSR write command; a first interconnect path to provide an address associated with the MSR write command and a second interconnect path to provide data associated with the MSR write command”, Classified in Class 710, Subclass 316.

III. Claim 24, drawn to a “system comprising: a means for executing at a first MSR access command and a means for providing, in response to executing the first MSR access command, a first access request an external bus port to access an external device”, Classified in Class 710, Subclass 107.

Inventions I and II are related as apparatus and method for its practice. They fall under different categories of invention. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case the method as claimed in claims 1-12 can be used in another materially different apparatus such as “a CPU on a single integrated circuit chip providing a sequential program control, Classified in Class 712, Subclass 32. Invention III, claim 24 is also distinct from invention II, claims 13-23 because the apparatus claimed in claim 24 is actually written in “mean plus function” form performing the steps of the method claimed in claim 1 and hence anticipates distinctness.

2. Because inventions (I & III) and II are distinct for the reasons given above, have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification and also require an extra search, i.e., the inventions as claimed in claims 1-12 and 24 require at least an extra search to meet the claimed limitation ("system on a chip" or SOC), restriction of claims (1-12 & 24) and (13-23) for examination purposes is proper.

3. Applicant is advised that the response to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed.

4. Applicant should cancel the claims of non-elected inventions. However, applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 C.F.R. § 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a diligently-filed petition under 37 C.F.R. § 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 C.F.R. § 1.17(h).
